Assisting North Dakota's Older Adults and People with Disabilities

Money Follows the Person Program

Overview of the Money Follows the Person Program

Options for Older Adults and People with Disabilities

The Money Follows the Person Program is about helping you find the right place to live that meets your needs and wants. The right place for you may be in an apartment, a shared home, your previous home, a family member's home, a home of your own, a nursing home, or an assisted living facility.

Money Follows the Person is a federal program that provides options for older adults and/or people with disabilities. The program provides funding for one-time moving costs and arranges for the services and supports you need to move from a nursing home or an institution for people with developmental disabilities.

How can the Money Follows the Person Program help me?

The program can assist you in moving from a nursing home or an institution for people with developmental disabilities to community living by providing:

- Information to help you decide on the right place for you to live
- Assistance and support from a transition coordinator* through North Dakota Centers for Independent Living if you are an older adult (age 65 or over) and/or have a physical disability
- Assistance and support from a program manager* at a regional human service center who will act as your transition coordinator if you have a developmental disability
- Payment for some one-time moving costs such as furniture, security deposits, home modifications and more
- Services and supports for one year
- Assistance to arrange for ongoing services and supports after your Money Follows the Person Program year has ended
- Follow-up to make sure the move was successful and that your needs are met

What housing choices will the Money Follows the Person Program offer me?

The program helps you find the right place to live. You will work with a transition coordinator to find housing that meets your needs and wants, as well as the services available in the community to meet your needs. Your choice may be a home of your own, a family member's or friend's home, an assisted living facility, an adult family foster care home or other housing in the community.

How do I qualify to take part in the Money Follows the Person Program?

You can be a part of the Money Follows the Person Program if you have lived in a nursing home or an institution for people with developmental disabilities for at least three months, you qualify for Medicaid, and you want to return to living in a community setting instead of an institutional setting.

Services/Supports Provided by the Money Follows the Person Program

What services and supports are provided by the Money Follows the Person Program?

If you choose to take part in the Money Follows the Person Program, you will work with a transition coordinator during your move from a nursing home or an institution for people with developmental disabilities to the community. The transition coordinator will support your needs through the entire process and make sure you have all the services and supports to live safely in the community.

The transition coordinator works with you to:

1) Identify Your Needs - The transition coordinator will meet with you and any support people you choose (family, friends, caregiver, etc.) to identify the services and supports you will need to move from a nursing home or an institution for people with developmental disabilities into community living.

2) Create a Plan - The transition coordinator will work with you to create a written plan that looks at your needs and wants, and the services and supports you will need to live safely in the community.

3) Arrange for Services/Supports - The transition coordinator will assist you in arranging services including, but not limited to:

- Medical and rehabilitative care
- Home health
- Bathing, dressing and using the bathroom
- House cleaning, laundry, shopping and meal preparation
- Meal services such as home delivered meals
- Transportation from public or volunteer providers

4) Assure Needs are Met - Following your move back into community living, the transition coordinator will work closely with you for the entire first year that you are in the community to make sure all your needs are met and that you are satisfied with the move. They will also help arrange for continued services and supports to meet your needs after the Money Follows the Person Program services have ended.

How do I pay for the things I need to set-up my new home?

The Money Follows the Person Program pays up to $3,000 for one-time moving costs. These items or activities may include, but are not limited to:

- Health and Safety Technology - medication dispensing systems, etc.
- Security and Utility Deposits - cable, phone and electricity deposits
- Home Modifications - remodeling help to make a home more accessible, etc.
- Adaptive Equipment - ramps, roll-in showers, safety grab bars, etc.
- Home/Apartment Furnishings - linens, dishes, small appliances, furniture, food, etc.
- Assistive Technology Devices - communication devices, screen magnifiers, environmental control systems, etc.
- One-Time Vehicle Modifications - adaptive seating, steering devices, wheelchair lifts, etc.
